

donated, and 824 purchased, including 133 vols. recently obtained by the Book Committee - for which no bill has as yet been returned. All the books belonging to the library are in good condition with the exception of about thirty volumes, which have suffered greatly from constant use. Even these, however, are still serviceable though it will probably be necessary to replace them during the coming year.

The library was opened to the public May 9th 1874, and there were until Jan. 30th 1875, but 716 volumes catalogued, yet the Record shows Feb. 1st 1875, or during the first nine months, a circulation of 2408 vols. or an average of $267\frac{5}{9}$ vols. per month.
